I like it because it is so funny. It had trains, planes and all those other loud things. I didn't believe my eyes! If you read it, you will think it's funny too I hope! My name is Cassie and I read this book.

My 2 yr old really loves this book and has it memorized. Very basic artwork so he can point out exactly what the page says, even though he can't read. It rhymes and it's cute to read with all the noises.

Even preschoolers will memorize the lines and rhymes and rhythm of this simple and silly book. Of course, some kids will tire of it quickly, while others will go back to it often for the lively illustrations. I'd suggest involving the little listeners with actions to accompany the words and sounds. This will help them learn more quickly and with all their senses. Yes, enjoy again!

My 10 month old baby boy loves this book. Something about the rhythm and rhyme I suspect. He cries when it is over so I always read it twice. There are parts to act out which he mimics like I slap my leg when "my sister slams the door". He also closes the book when I am two pages from the end so I will start over and read it again. This book published in 1968 is a winner 40 years later.

All the older grandkids got their YEARbooks paid for by Nana this Christmas...the baby got an "EAR" book instead! This was the absolute perfect solution for us since baby needed something similar to the others. The book is a cute, little hard bound board-style book, just the same as the larger book I've seen on the library shelf. It's just right for chewing on, oh and for letting those older grandkids read to said baby when she's willing to listen! And by the way, now she knows how to answer when we say, "Where's your EARS?"

Cute book. I gave it as a gift to my daughters ear doctor for his waiting room and he really liked it.

Maybe I'm the oddball out or maybe I just don't have rythm, this book just doesn't flow like The Foot Book or The Nose Book. The size and quality are good, but I wouldn't buy this one again.

My daughter who is 18mos loves this book! I have to read it over and over again. (She also likes the Eye book and Foot book, but not the Nose or Tooth book...)
